LIFE BEYOND THE MILITARY – OUTDOORS

FEMALE VETERANS

Looking for a rewarding and interesting career?
Want to use your instructing skills post
military service?

Teaching in the Land-based sector may be for you

HighGround has developed a groundbreaking two-year programme specifically designed to support female veterans in their transition to new careers within the Further Education land-based sector. This innovative initiative will provide participants with the tools and qualifications necessary to succeed, including a recognised Level 3 Award in Education and Training (AET) teaching qualification.

Year One – Laying the Groundwork for Success:

- Will focus on identifying and supporting female veterans who are within the scope of this initiative.
- A series of online webinars and taster days in partnership with Sparsholt College and Bicton College, to introduce potential participants to the opportunities available within the Further Education land-based sector and overarching Land-based sector to gauge their interest in pursuing a teaching qualification.

Year Two – Equipping Female Veterans with the Skills to Thrive:

- Two cohorts, each comprising of up to ten female veterans, embark on a ten-week blended learning course
- Resulting in a Level 3 AET qualification, a key stepping stone toward a teaching career in the Further Education land-based sector
- Including ongoing mentoring and support to help navigate new career paths with confidence and success
